

- Son of Norman Rockwell of the Saturday Evening Post fame, after time in Air Force went to San Francisco 1955-1965. Shared his father's interest in "ordinary life and that the "20th Century is the century of the common man".
- Had his "first ever show" at the Batman Nov. 2-Dec. 7 1965.
"A thoroughly academic artist in full flight from the Academy...with sensitive and beautiful drawings with a compulsion to shatter that image with drawings of faces with 8 eyes and 4 mouths and in fantastic landscapes in other worlds than our own (Reviewer, leading art critic of the San Francisco Chronicle, A. Frankenstein Nov 65).

He lived next to the Batman Gallery on Fillmore Street. Mike Agron helped him pack up his work when he left San Francisco. Although Mike Agron had purchased a number of his completed works, he asked Jarvis if he could have a number of experimental/unfinished works which Jarvis planned to discard when he left. These were generously given to Mike.
